AstroPower (NASDAQ:APWR) OPS Alert

April 16, 2003

Astropower NASDAQ:APWR) shares are in danger of falling below $1. AstroPower missed its April 15, 2003 deadline for the filing of its financial statements and may soon face delisting from the Nasdaq stock market. StockDiagnostics.com has issued numerous OPS warnings on AstroPower and in September of 2002 with its shares trading at $7.33 projected that the company would go out of business sometime in 2003.

In AstroPower's most recent filing with the SEC on April 2, 2002 it requested a 15 day extension to file its year end 2002 Financial Statements and also indicated that it would most likely have to restate its financials for its year ended December 31, 2002. In our opinion time has run out for AstroPower. We believe that its auditors, KPMG, will resign from representing the company and that its shares could soon collapse to under $1 per share and will be trading in the pink sheets. We also believe that AstroPower could also file for bankruptcy protection.

Chronology of events involving StockDiagnostics.com and AstroPower:

May 2002, (APWR:$22.63) StockDiagnostics.com suspends its OPS Rating and issues warning on AstroPower shares after it diagnoses it with "The EPS Syndrome", a rare financial statement anomaly which was discovered by StockDiagnsotics.com which is based on a company reporting "record" EPS and having negative operating cash flow.

September 2002, (APWR:$7.40) The OPS Newsletter which is published by StockDiagnostics.com reiterates its OPS Warning by stating "AstroPower does not have a viable business model and it will be difficult for them to stay in business beyond 2003". See OPS Newsletter issue 5.

January 2003, (APWR: $7.90) The OPS Newsletter says that AstroPower is headed to the pink sheets. See OPS Newsletter issue 18.

March 3, 2003, (APWR:$5.99), The OPS Newsletter issues an OPS Alert warning that AstroPower's 2002 year end earnings announcement scheduled for March 5th may be severely negative "AstroPower is expected to announce its 2002 year end results on March 5, 2003, and barring a miracle we suspect that its announcement may divulge substantial losses that are related to write-downs of its receivables and its inventory... shares may go into the $3 range (new all time lows) within days". See March 3, 2003, OPS Alert.

March 4, 2003, The OPS Newsletter issues another OPS Alert after the company cancels its scheduled earnings announcement for March 5, 2003. AstroPower's shares (Nasdaq: APWR, $5.20) hit a 4-year low of $5.08 on heavy trading volume after the company delayed its previously scheduled March 5, 2003, earnings announcement "pending receipt of confirmation of certain contractual agreements with two government customers". OPS warnings says "management is most likely having difficulties in convincing its auditor, KPMG, that its receivables are legitimate". See March 4, 2003, OPS Alert.

April 2, 2003, AstroPower notifies SEC that it is unable to meet the deadline for filing its financials and requests extension. AstroPower also discloses "likely that a restatement of certain 2002 quarters will be necessary...revenue recognition matters may impact 2001." See SEC filing: <http://www.sec.gov/Archives/edgar/data/885672/000095010903001977/dnt10k.txt>

April 14, 2003, The OPS Newsletter issues another OPS warning which cautions that its shares will soon fall below $1.00 after AstroPower misses the deadline for the filing of its 2002, year end financials.

Helen of Troy Limited
(NASDAQ: HELE) OPS
Alert

July 17, 2003

Shares for Helen of Troy Limited (NASDAQ: HELE:$18.79) closed at $19.57 on July 16th up just under $4.00 since our last alert on the company on May 13. The primary force behind the company's sharp price increase is its announced "records" for EPS and Revenue for its quarter ended May 31, 2003 and a 3 million share buy-back plan. We, however, believe that the company's share price surge may be short-lived. More...
